Home And Happiness.

Many a young wife is so negligent of her husband's comfort, is so glum and blue and cheerless, that home to him is not a place to stay, he'd rather be out among the boys, there is life and fun among them, while there is nothing but fault finding and cross looks at home. The woman who cannot talk intelligently and pleasantly to her husband about business matters that concern them both, and make the home a cheery place that he will not be ashamed to invite his friends to visit, is lost. He most likely will bring his friend when she is cleaning house, or has a sick headache, or there is nothing good for dinner, but that doesn't make any difference, it doesn't excuse her for getting out of sorts, about it, she must smile on and do the best she can, not forgetting that a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, it is a priceless possession that can only be obtained by being put through the fiery furnace. This is the way true metal is tested. Let the young husband and wife not grow discouraged at defects they find in one another. They are always there, but time and patience smooth our wrinkles, and adapt the pair to each other's ways.

To twit and continually say, "I told you so," shows a lack of good breeding and kindly feeling. We would not think of using such a phrase outside the household. Are not those within the precincts of home as precious as those without? Conscience is the heart's safety valve. Energy and persistence conquer all things.

Hold up your heads, girls! The ugliest of you may have the beauty of health and purity and innocence. The plainest may make herself so beloved that the hearts of those who know her will long for her presence, and to them she shall seem the very queen of beauty. If your lips are too thick and lacking in curves, teach them to utter sweet words of sympathy and noble words of inspiration. If your hands are large, let them ever be ready and helpful. Glad almoners of a generous heart. It will shine through and be apparent to the dullest eye, and while making the mind and heart beautiful, do not forget the body. Keep it clean, wholesome and pure, and you will be a delight to yourself and those about you. No matter how bright the eyes may be, if they reflect unkind, unlovely thoughts they are not beautiful. No matter how soft and white the hands may be, if they cannot work they are useless members, commanding no respect.

It's easy to be noble among the noble. The difficult thing is to keep the nobility of one's nature unperverted among the petty and the ignoble.

A false friend is like a shadow on the dial; it appears in clear weather but vanishes as soon as a cloud approaches.

Contentment is the only true happiness of life; and a pleasant disposition and good work will make the whole surroundings ring with cheerfulness.

In idleness alone there is perpetual despair.

The best capital, in nine cases out of ten, a young man can start in the world with, is robust health, sound morals, a fair intelligence, a will to work his way honestly, bravely.

WEST VIRGINIA NEIGHBORS.

The Wayne Camp of Confederate Sons and Daughters was organized Saturday and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon. F. W. Terrill, Pres. Jas. T. Lamber, Vice Pres. and D. W. Frazier, Secy. and Treasurer.

Webster Springs, W. Va., May 31.—All eyes are now turned toward this place by reason of the fact that Monday is the day set to hear the legislative bribery cases, which were moved here from the Kanawha-co. Circuit court to be tried by Judge O'Brien. All the indicted legislators are here, with the exception of Mr. Van Meter, who we understand, is too ill to come at this time but may be able to get here by the time his case is called.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 7.—President John F. White and eighteen other officials of the United Mine workers of America were indicted in the Federal Court here today on a charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

W. A. Liller, of Keyser, W. Va., has just been awarded the contract to construct four hundred and twenty houses for the Pond Creek Coal Co., in Pike-co., Kentucky. The contract aggregates almost a quarter million dollars, and will engage the personal attention of Mr. Liller. The houses are to be of four, five and six rooms, modern construction, and some of them will be finished with bath and all other modern conveniences.

Charleston, W. Va., May 27.—Governor Hatfield issued a proclamation tonight declaring June 20, the fiftieth anniversary of the creation of the state, a legal holiday and requesting citizens to celebrate the day.

Williamson, W. Va., June 4.—Finding William Miller, a prominent business and church man, and Mrs. Whitten together in the beautiful Whitten home last night J. B. Whitten, a wealthy coal operator, proceeded to send a bullet through Miller's hat.

The West Virginia Coal Mining Institute, an organization whose purpose it is to promote the welfare of the mining industry in this state, and which numbers among its members miners, fire bosses, mine foremen, superintendents and general managers of coal companies, will hold its summer meeting at Morgantown on June 24, 25 and 26.

KENTUCKY NEIGHBORS.

Hazard is, we venture, the healthiest town in the mountains, in conversation with Billie Engle, the hardware man, who also carries undertaking supplies, he made the statement that his firm had sold fewer caskets in the past twelve months than in any like period of time in the past. This statement brought up the question of the number of deaths in Hazard in the past twelve months, and we counted five, all under fifteen years of age with one exception. Can any other town of 2,000 inhabitants compare to this?—Hazard Herald.

Prestonsburg, Ky., June 8.—The Floyd county grand jury which has just adjourned, made a report which is unusual for this county. It reports the jail empty and crime on the decrease. A strong sentiment against corrupt elections is reported, and it is also said that the last general election was comparatively free of bribery and the unlawful use of liquor. The jury was in session two weeks, examined 176 witnesses and found 144 true bills.

Whitesburg, Ky., June 8.—The Consolidation Coal Co., at Jenkins has started to build a large hospital. It will take the place of the temporary hospital built a year ago. This will be the largest hospital in Eastern Kentucky. The building will cost $30,000.

Although results are not glaringly apparent, the Courier's fight for better roads, better schools and improved agricultural conditions in Morgan-co., and Eastern Kentucky is bearing fruit. We are sufficiently encouraged to keep up the good work. The time will come when our efforts will be more fully appreciated, even if at present we do have to be content with the knowledge of a duty well performed. The people are awakening gradually, but it is a matter of history that no reform is ever heralded by a torchlight procession and a blare of trumpets.—West Liberty Courier.

Lightning struck a flue on J. T. Day's store Thursday, and after knocking off a few bricks passed down the stovepipe and out through the front door, about fifty feet, and between two rows of citizens sitting there without touching any of them. —Hazel Green Herald.

CHAT OVERHEARD AT LOCAL STORE

Two Men Discuss the Present Schoolbook Law.

BOTH AGREE IT IS UNJUST.

To Have the County Authorities Select the Children's Schoolbooks Often Means a Hardship For the Parents and a Loss of Valuable Time to the Pupil.

"Say, Bill, somebody told me the county is to select the children's schoolbooks for next year."

"Yep, that's what the fellows round the courthouse say. It's a new law again."

"No; I reckon they've gone back to the one we had a good while ago. Well, all I can say is I'm mighty sorry."

"Why? Don't you think our folks can select good schoolbooks?"

"Course they can, but that ain't the point I'm drivin' at. Look here, you're leasin' a farm same as I am, ain't you?"

"Well, suppose you buy your boy an' girl a set of books for school next fall, an' then 'bout the Christmas holidays you go over into the Big Ball Skin neighborhood just across the county line."

"By George, I hadn't thought about that side of the question!"

"Course you didn't, 'cause your kids are just little fellers, an' they ain't been to school long. But you wait until you have a whole raft of 'em, like I've got, an' then you'll understand what a big thing it can be. I remember mighty well one time when I moved from one county into another. The move wasn't more than five miles either, an' the new books I had to buy for my four children cost me $9."

"That's mighty tough, an' I don't wonder you're kickin' about it."

"If the cost of the books was all of it it wouldn't be so bad. I've got a heap bigger kick comin' than just the cost of the books."

"What is it?"

"What hurts me is that sometimes a child'll lose a lot of valuable time. There's my oldest boy. He's got on sixteen, an' he's through the eighth grade an' ready for the high school. He'd been through almost two years of high school work if he hadn't lost time changin' from one school to another."

The man was silent for a moment before he continued sadly: "The boy's big for his age, an' now he's got to work because he feels he is too big an' old to go through high school. The changin' round means that my boy won't take a high school education like he planned to. Just the other day I saw in a paper where the average pay for the man who had only gone through the eight grades was almost $400 less than that of the feller who had had a high school course. If that's so my boy'll stand to lose almost $8,000 in hard money in the next twenty years of his life. He'll lose enough through the changes in his school to buy him a first class farm."

The men were silent again for a few moments. At length one spoke up. "Kinder strange how all of us fellers talk an' plan how things ought to be run at Washington," he said. "We talk of who should be president an' all that. An' we won't take the trouble to try to straighten out a schoolbook law in Kentucky that means money out of our pockets every time we move an' money out of our children's pockets for the rest of their natural lives."

"Say, let's all agree to watch the schools just a little bit, an' let's get busy with our next legislature an' see if us fellers that stand between the plow handles an' feed folks can't have things fixed to suit our pocketbooks an' to make it better for our children."

The New Schoolbook Law.

A strong effort is expected to be made at the next session of the general assembly to amend the textbook law, possibly restoring the system of state selection. The present law provides that each county shall choose its own textbooks through a commission composed of a member of the county board, a member of the board of examiners and a county school principal. The old contract will expire next year, and as no selections have ever been made by county commissions those in favor of state selections are desirous of securing legislative action restoring it before the county commissions have a chance to act. Under the old state system the county judges, county superintendents and county attorneys voted on the textbooks and a majority ruled. Some form of legislation will be considered by the Kentucky Educational association at its meeting in Louisville, April 30, and probably a draft of the measure favored by a majority will be prepared for submission to the general assembly.—Editorial Pineville Sun.
